PhD Studentship in Audiology

The School of Healthcare wishes to attract a high-quality student to study in the area of auditory perception. Those with a degree in audiology, the behavioral, or speech sciences (at first or upper second class or Masters) are invited to apply for a 3 year PhD studentship, starting in October 2005.

You will receive an annual tax-free stipend in the range £12,000 - £13,000, with increases in years 2 and 3, plus tuition fees and an annual research expenses allowance. You will be able to undertake some paid employment by mutual agreement.

The School, which has a vibrant research community and received a 4 in the 2001 RAE, welcomes enquiries in the following areas:

Spatial hearing and vision

Auditory processing, phonological processing, cognition and literacy

You will be supervised by Dr Nick Thyer.
