

Faculty Position in the Department of Biomedical Sciences and the Bellucci Translational Hearing Center

The Department of Biomedical Sciences in the Creighton University School of Medicine invites applications for a tenure-track position at the rank of Associate Professor. The Center is strengthening existing research in translational auditory and vestibular neurosciences by establishing new laboratories. Special consideration will be given to those utilizing various translational approaches to auditory diseases, including drug development, genomic predisposition, and/or etiologies of hearing loss, animal models, research audiology and clinical applications. Appointees will be expected to conduct a vigorous independent research program and participate in graduate and professional student teaching. Applicants should have R01-level funding (>$200,000/year in direct costs). Generous laboratory space with equipment, competitive start-up funding, and state-of-the art core facilities will be provided. Applicants should have a Ph.D., M.D., or M.D./Ph.D. degree, along with recent significant research and scholarly accomplishments. Application materials, including a CV, brief summaries of research plans and teaching interests, a personal mission statement on how research and teaching activities will reflect Creighton's Catholic, Jesuit mission (see <https://www.creighton.edu/about/mission>), and the names of three referees who can write letters of recommendation (at least one of whom is outside the applicant's home institution) should be sent through the following website: <http://careers.creighton.edu> (position number: 230484, link). Applications will be screened immediately and will continue to be accepted until the position is filled.

Creighton University is located on 139 beautiful acres near downtown Omaha. The School of Medicine is one of nine schools and colleges at Creighton University including professional schools of Business, Law, Nursing, Dentistry, Pharmacy and Health Professions, and the Graduate School. Founded in 1878, Creighton University is a Catholic, Jesuit institution with an enrollment of approximately 7,000 undergraduate, graduate and professional trainees that has earned the top spot in U.S. News & World Report magazine's college ranking for Midwest Regional Universities for 15 consecutive years. In addition, neighboring Boys Town National Research Hospital and University of Nebraska Medical Center provide ample collaborative opportunities. Creighton University is an equal opportunity, affirmative action educational Institution and employer, and title IX University. Applications from minorities, women, veterans, and persons with disabilities are especially welcomed.