Call for Papers

The International Symposium on Temporal Design (ISTD), held every two years, is an international forum for researchers interested in the Temporal Design Theory. The 10th ISTD was postponed to 2023 due to Covid-19. In 2023, the 10th ISTD will be held in Seoul, South Korea. It aims at going beyond the traditional design concepts, primarily concerned with issues of spatial design only, considering the temporal dimension of life too. This brings a better blending of natural activities and human rhythms. To achieve "temporal design" one must approach design problems with knowledge of the "temporal dynamism" of the interactions between human creativity and its effects on the natural environment, and between human activities and built and natural environment. Cultural development in the smart city may favor a lifestyle pattern that does not attempt to go against the forces of nature. It is invaluable the contribution this approach can give to architecture, engineering, pedagogy, psychology, and many other disciplines.
