Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

In recent years, urban environments have undergone spatial reformulation, with spaces made more suitable, comfortable, and green; sustainable energy solutions employed; and net zero strategies established to create sustainable environments. Soundscape interventions and noise abatement measures have been suggested to address issues in the sonic environment. However, there is little evidence of their impacts in social, cultural, decision-making/behavioural, environmental, health, well-being, and policy contexts.

This Special Issue of Sustainability encourages the submission of articles and reviews presenting disciplinary, multidisciplinary, interdisciplinary, and convergence research on “Urban Noise Control, Public Health and Sustainable Cities”. Topics may include (but are not limited to) the following:

- Environmental noise;
- Noise abatement;
- Emerging noise sources;
- Strategic soundscape planning;
- Soundscape interventions;
- Sustainable soundscapes;
- Soundscape design;
- Restorative sonic environments;
- Quiet areas;
- Urban health.
